

PATHS NEWCOMERS MUST TREAD ARE DISCUSSED BY PRINCIPAL AT CONVOCATION

Constant Effort Essential Says Sir Arthur, Urging Individual Research—Vision and Judgment as Vital Things That Make a People Great—University and Citizenship—Colorful Ceremony as Degrees are Awarded—Honorary L.L.D., for Right Honorable Sir Bertrand Dawson

Pointing to the paths that the new men entering McGill must tread, urging them to realize the wealth of tradition that lay behind the university and the great ideals of the Founders, stressing the great need for hard work, and the place that the student should occupy as a citizen of Canada, Sir Arthur Currie, McGill's Principal, yesterday afternoon delivered his annual Founder's Day address and the opening address of the session. He pointed to the significance of the occasion and to the need for the incorporation into all academic endeavor of a broader culture and nobler vision—such as had sustained Canada in peace and in war.

"Our students are seldom taught to find out things for themselves," said Sir Arthur. Individual research, he pointed out, was in reality a great essential, only to be achieved by constant hard work. A larger, more liberal view of life must be cultivated in the universities, the student must keep a just sense of proportion especially at the outset of his academic career, as regards activities, and there must be a true realization of the reasons for his coming to college.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Right Honorable Sir Bertrand Dawson, Baron Dawson of Penn, who briefly addressed the assembly.

"While technically we celebrate more particularly the birthday of our Founder, we think tonight with reverence and gratitude of all those unselfish men and women who helped in days past to make our University," Sir Arthur declared. "Founders' Day therefore is in proud and grateful remembrance of our benefactors. I may be pardoned by this audience if my remarks are intended primarily for the students who are here for the first time, and to whom the history and the ideals of our University are practically unknown."

Briefly Sir Arthur sketched the circumstances which prompted the generous and keen-sighted action of James McGill in founding a university. "To him, as to Newman, a university meant a place in which the intellect may safely range and speculate, sure to find its equal in some antagonistic activity, and its judge in the tribunal of truth; a place where inquiry is pushed forward and discoveries verified and perfected, and rashness rendered innocuous, and error exposed, by the collision of mind with mind, and knowledge with knowledge; a place where the professor becomes eloquent and is a missionary, and a preacher displaying his science in its most complete and most winning form, pouring it forth with the zeal of enthusiasm and lighting up his own love of it in the brains of his hearers; a place which was the admiration of the young by its celebrity, kindles the affection of the middle-aged by its beauty, and rivets the fidelity of the old by its associations. It is a seat of wisdom, a light of the world, a minister of the faith, and Alma Mater of the rising generation."

BETTER CITIZENS
"James McGill believed that the greatest task of a University is to make young men and women better citizens—better members of society."
This, Sir Arthur said, was also realized by James McGill's contemporaries and they early established the public school system which have been enlarged and improved to the present day.

"Some of our pioneer ancestors believed that knowledge was the one thing needful in our country in 1800, and that unselfishness would follow in due time as a matter of course; others thought that if knowledge could be provided by the schools and colleges, the Christian Church would secure the needed unselfishness in its use. Such were the hopes of James McGill in Quebec, of Dr. MacCulloch in the Maritime Provinces, of Dr. Strachan in Ontario, and of our own Sir William Dawson seventy years ago." (Applause.)

But, Sir Arthur pointed out, there today exists in Canada the danger of forgetting these hopes. The course of study has been widened each decade, but it has not been accompanied by an increase in political wisdom. Perhaps two-thirds of the things taught in Canadian schools and colleges have little effect in making boys and girls better citizens. In spite of this Canada's pioneer educators were right.

"Education is needed in our country, probably more needed today than ever before. And it is our problem in the University—a political and a spiritual problem—to find out what are the essentials of education necessary to make good citizens out of our students and to set ourselves to the work of mastering these essentials."

"Culture, while valuable, is not all. Professional efficiency too is valuable. But it also is not the sole end of education. The vital things that make people great, and that qualify students for leadership among free men are vision and judgment," declared Sir Arthur.

Vision means seeing things as they really are—a somewhat rare quality, the Principal declared. "One of our greatest weaknesses in Canada today is prejudice. We are blinded too often by prejudice. We see what we want to see—because of laziness or timidity or selfishness. We select the newspaper whose ideals agree with our own ideas. Our students are seldom taught to find out things for themselves. But the habit of getting at things for ourselves is a habit we can acquire here in college at the price of constant hard work not unaccompanied by discouragement and sometimes failure."

A TRAINING GROUND
"If we are to be true to the ideals of our Founders we must remember that the University is a training ground neither for hard utility nor for ornament, neither for the solely theoretical nor the solely practical. It must combine the two and it must develop one at the expense of the other. We must not forget the average boy who will become the average good citizen. Only a limited number of the young men here can go on to the highest learning in their professions, but all will be useful Canadians. And at the same time we must remember that there is no socialism or communism in educational achievement and intellectual attainment; these things depend upon industry and effort. We need, above all, to cultivate in our universities a large and liberal view of life, a salutary lesson greatly needed in our day. We must place education above mere mathematics of life and incorporate into all our academic endeavors that broader culture and nobler vision which made the men who have sustained this country in peace and in war."

Newcomers to college might well think of their reasons for coming here said Sir Arthur. There would be many distractions—a multitude of activities other than those academic—and it would be well for them to keep their sense of proportion.

"In a democracy which decides questions involving the national welfare by a majority of voices, whoever refuses to lift up his voice is a traitor to his cause, whatever that cause may be. It is useless to content ourselves with vague declamations about abuses in general. It is the fashion to decry our country. In such an hour the Canadian student has duties in his homeland, duties to every crisis."

There are other duties than merely the intellectual at college, the Principal continued. The end of society is the improvement of society and the development of the race. Liberty and enlightenment are the conditions of human progress. The forts of folly in the student's homeland must be attacked and he must equip himself accordingly. He must learn that the mass of men are never better than their institutions, that moral self-respect is the first condition of national life, that labor is the first condition of national prosperity—and that thought is life.

McGill has done much for Canada. She has been the mother of unselfish men and women. Hence the new men at the college are called to great duties. Work must be done by hard strokes.

"We need a rising enthusiasm in Canada," Sir Arthur said. "We must not stand in the fog motionless. Remember what McGill has meant to your country, and he not un mindful of your heritage. In peace your college has added to your country's riches have little effect in making boys

RAIN HAMPER TENNIS MATCHES

Surprise in Gordon-Caron Tilt

Owing to the rain yesterday little progress was made in the second round of the tennis tournament now being held. In spite of this fact there were several creditable exhibitions, particularly the match between John Gordon and Ray Caron, which was possibly an upset. Caron, a player of real merit, was put out by Gordon in two straight sets. It was a match filled with thrilling rallies. Moffat's game with Laverly also proved a close one. The following are the results.

Prith defeated Farver, 6-0, 6-1; Costigan defeated Pangman 6-2, 7-5; Abbott defeated Astwood 6-0, 6-1; Diplock defeated Cowan 6-3, 6-2; Leslie defeated Reid 6-0, 6-0; Wayland defeated Nelles 6-1, 6-2; Moffat defeated Laverly 6-4, 7-5; Perry defeated Chipman 6-1, 6-1; Gordon defeated Caron 6-4, 7-5; Brosseau defeated Albert by default.

The semi-finals will be played at 2.30 and 3.30 on Friday afternoon; while the finals will take place on Saturday morning at 11.00 o'clock. Jack Wright who did not play yesterday will play at least two matches today. The draw for today is as follows:

2:00 P.M.
Archdale vs. Brosseau
Desbarats vs. McLaren
McInerney vs. Vineberg
Adams vs. Monro

3:00 P.M.
Abbott vs. Diplock
McLeod vs. Peters
Pacaud vs. Dobrofsky
Winner of Pacaud vs. Dobrofsky vs. Leslie.

4:00 P.M.
Wright vs. Taylor
Prith vs. Costigan
Wayland vs. Moffat
Winner of McInerney vs. Vineberg vs. Perry.
Winner of Adams vs. Monro vs. Gordon

4:30 P.M.

S. C. A. WILL HOLD RECEPTION

Freshmen Have Chance To Meet Upper Class Men

At 8.15 to-morrow evening freshmen will again assemble en masse for a jolly evening, the occasion this time being the popular Freshman Reception held annually at Strathcona Hall.

As outlined in the invitation sent to freshmen the purpose of the reception is three-fold:
"First, to help you become acquainted with others of the Freshman class.
Second, to help you to meet a few men from the senior years who might be in a position to lend you valuable assistance during your first few weeks at college.
Third, to make you acquainted with the aim and purpose of the Student Christian Movement of Canada and to offer you its privileges."

A number of the senior men are to be present, and will help with the program already arranged (which promises to be a lively one) and in other ways give the Freshmen an enjoyable evening. Indeed this is the reception at which have meant so much to them during their entire college life.

Refreshments and tobacco are also on the programing while (which is still more important) the Students Council has decreed that there shall be no initiation activities that night.

MUSIC STUDENTS WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Results of Recent Examinations Held at Conservatorium

Recent competitive examinations held in the McGill University Conservatorium of Music have resulted in the awarding of a number of scholarships. The Peterson Scholarship valued at $180.00 was divided among Florence and the Hooper Scholarship of $100.00 by Isidore Grudnick.

The Conservatorium Scholarship of $180.00 was divided among Florence Grossman, Donald Crawford and Sylvia Kelay.

There were also four other scholarships each valued at $175.00. These are: the Lindsay Scholarship, which goes to Frances Galtman and Warner Norman; the Peterson Scholarship, equally merited by Max Chomilov and Harold Gillingham; and two Macdonald Scholarships, one of which was

GREAT VALUE OF SCOUTING TO BOYS

H. T. Ravenhill and Dr. Adams Speak

H. T. Ravenhill was chief speaker at last evening's meeting of the Old Scout's Club, while Dr. Adams, former Dean of Science, gave some of the glimpses of scouting gained on the extensive tour from which he has recently returned. After the real scout camp supper, E. H. P. Hamilton called on Mr. Ravenhill, who spoke on "Scouting Applied." He outlined Scouting as the joy of life, the highest form of religion in service for others. Scouting leads boys on to healthy and useful lives, and the best scouting was the one practised outside. Scouting indoors is impossible. The open road and bush appealed to the boys, and camp became the only outlet of the real boy himself. Concerning large cities, in Montreal, the boy of the poor locality had his only glimpse of Woodcraft in his two weeks camp. There it was that he became well-mannered and gentlemanly. The boys are great imitators and a S.M. must apply scouting to his own life so that the boys might live it. An efficient man could tell the character of a S.M. by his troop.

Quick referring to the recent scout experiment of the great school of Marlborough, England, he pointed out that the Scouting spirit would drive away any fears of Bolshevism.

Dr. Adams said that in his recent travel the attitude of the Scout had impressed him greatly. Whether it was the smiling Dutch boy or the studious French scout, the Singapore troop under Murray C. Brooks, McGill graduate now in charge of a Y.M.C.A. in Ceylon, or the Business lad in Mandalay, each pointed to the universality and the efficiency of the training.

The expenses of the supper were defrayed by the vice-president.

THREE CONTESTS ON ELECTION DAY

Canadian Club President will Be Chosen

As well as voting for men to fill the offices of cheer leader and vice-president of the Union House Committee on Thursday the fifteenth of this month, undergraduates will at the same time choose a President of the McGill Canadian Club in succession to the late "Cy" Morris. Nominations for this latter office are to be in the hands of the secretary of the Students' Council in the Union by six o'clock in the afternoon of next Thursday, October 8.

This action, taken by the Students' Council to deal with exceptional circumstances, will have to be ratified at the next meeting of the Students' Society which is to be held October 21st. This meeting is also to be a meeting of the Canadian Club and at it the vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the organization will be elected.

"Two men are up for each of the offices for which nominations closed Monday, J. R. Caron and Ward Allan will contest the vice-presidency of the Union House Committee, while Jack Duckworth and Bill Murchison are standing for the position of college cheer leader."

LITERARY CONTRIBUTIONS
The McGill Daily will commence next week its fourth attempt at having a literary department. This will consist in several columns of the editorial page being devoted to articles of original conception, to be contributed by those students who are willing to do so. To this end, therefore, contributions are from now on invited. They should be addressed to the Literary Editor of the McGill Daily, McGill Union. It is understood that there be no limit to the range of material which may be used as subject matter and also, particularly that there be no bound to the range of opinion expressed in the articles. Nevertheless, that the name Literary Department (which, by the way, is merely provisional) may have a definite meaning, student writers of verse, plays, sketches, and suchlike are especially asked to write for this section of the Daily; their contributions will be enthusiastically welcomed. If the precedent of response on the part of McGill students to the definite Literary Supplement be continued, nothing more satisfactory can be expected.

The class executives for the three junior years at the R. V. C. were elected at the various meetings held yesterday.

In the Third Year Miss Leona Gray, is president; Miss Adele Languelet is president of the Sophomores, while Miss Sara Cox will guide R. V. C. '29 through its first year of McGill.

The other officers elected were: Vice President Third Year Miss M. Savage; Second Year Miss G. Wyers; First Year D. Teakle.

Rep. Vice Pres. Third Year Miss H. Milligan; Second year Miss J. Reid; First Year

Sec. Tres. Third Year Miss G. Alton; Second Year Miss J. Warden; First Year Miss. Longworth.

P. C. STUDENTS MET YESTERDAY

Officers Elected to the Students' Council

An enthusiastic and energetic gathering of young men was present at the first meeting of the students body of the continuing Presbyterian Church in Canada, held in the student's quarters, "Room B, Strathcona Hall." Students in Arts and Theology composed the meeting and there was considerable discussion regarding the policy of the students towards students and staff of the co-operation colleges who were not acting in such a manner as to permit co-operation.

Officers were elected to the student council as follows: President, Mr. Wallace Goforth M. A. Vice President, Mr. John Howie (Med. '27) Secretary, Mr. W. D. G. Hollingworth.

An inspiring address was given by Dr. Brodie-Brookwell of McGill University who spoke on the great opportunities that were given to minorities. He traced minority movements in history which eventually had great influence on the future course of events and which became the greatest stimulus for progress that was possible.

Dr. W. D. Reid and Dr. R. W. Dickie, both members of the Faculty also addressed the students.

Phinlay D. J. Fraser briefly explained the situation regarding the college as it stands at present and answered many questions which arose in the minds of the students. It is expected that the final registration of students preparing for the ministry of the continuing church this year will be between twenty-five and thirty.

COMMERCIAL SOCIETY WILL MEET FRIDAY

Business Includes Election of Officers

The Commercial Society will hold its first general meeting of the season in the Arts Building at 10 o'clock this coming Friday. The chief business will be the election of a treasurer and drawing up of plans for the year.

It is expected that a programme will be drawn up similar to that of last year—a year agreed by all to be most successful. During the year a series of fortnightly meetings was inaugurated at which prominent business men of Montreal addressed the members on subjects of particular industrial interest.

Among the many guests of the Society who spoke during the season were: T. P. Jones, President of the Canada Cement Company; Murray E. Williams and W. G. F. Luther, both members of the Montreal Stock Exchange; Robert McNutt of the Sun Life Assurance Co. and Mr. MacKenzie, former president of the Montreal Board of Trade. These opportunities of hearing such men has helped to bring the students in close contact with conditions and ways of the business world.

The Society at various times during its existence has given several suggestions to the Department as regard extra courses and other things for the welfare of Commerce Students. The Society will continue its efforts towards the establishment of the School of Commerce as a Faculty.

The Banquet held at the Mount Royal Hotel on February 13, 1925 was a successful closing to a successful year. Among the many distinguished guests were: Sir Arthur Currie, E. W. Beattie, Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, Walter Mason, E. W. Beattie, who was the principal speaker of the evening.

Louis A. Dowling was re-elected president of Commerce '28 at a meeting of the class held recently. The remaining officers were: vice-president, R. B. Spears; secretary, Miss R. E. Granger; treasurer, M. H. MacKenzie; class reporter, S. G. Nelles.

The Harriers have been training faithfully lately, but they too have not had the number of new men they should be running. The Harriers club will be holding the interfaculty meet in the near future, and has, in addition, the intercollegiate and Dunlop Road races on its programme. Every man who is at all interested in running is therefore urged by the club officials to join in the runs every Wednesday, Friday and Monday.

McGILL CAMPUS IS NEAR SITE OF HOCHELAGA

"Near here was the site of the first town of Hochelaga, visited by Jacques Cartier in 1535, abandoned before 1600. It contained fifty large houses, each lodging several families who subsisted by cultivation and fishing." This inscription, in French and English, is on a bronze plaque, which in turn is set in a boulder in the grounds of the McCord Museum. The monument, unveiled in the spring at the time when the Canadian Historical Society was holding its annual meeting in the Royal Victoria College, is designed to keep fresh the memory of the proximity of the ancient location of the Indian town, and not to indicate that the identical spot was once within the native palisades.

As a matter of fact, the ancient position of Hochelaga was ascertained in 1850 by a group of men, chief of whom was Sir William Dawson, to be slightly south-west of the Museum stretching from Mansfield almost to Sherbrooke St. But this land is now completely covered with houses, and the grounds of the McCord Building was the most suitable site for a commemorative tablet. Accordingly, the monument, was erected by the Committee of Historic Sites and Monuments and presented to McGill University for preservation by Mr. A. Fautoux, curator of the Sainte-Sulpice Library, on May 22nd, 1925.

Sir Arthur Currie was not able to accept in person this memorial to the past, but Dr. Leacock was present as the Principal's representative, saying: "As long as any of our buildings stand this rock shall be cherished."

When the Canadian National Railway was running the tunnel under the mountain, an air hole was dug. Just where the rock tower of the Rodolphe Monument is now placed, and in construction, many

INTERFACULTY TRACK MEET THIS FRIDAY

Not Too Late For Post Entries

Although the entry lists for the Interfaculty Track Meet next Friday were sent to the printer last night, Coach Van Wagner has left forms in the field house so that a man who has not as yet signed their names may put in post entries. Already fifty-one athletes have signified their intention of competing and the faculty feeling is commencing to run high. Fifteen representatives from both Arts and Science head the lists in point of numbers, while Medicine has its squad next in size, with ten competitors.

The quarter-mile is evidently the most popular event, as already ten men have entered. But the hundred yards, 220 yards, the javelin, the three miles and the 220 yard low hurdles are not far behind, with eight names in up to the moment of going to press. But there may not be this number of men in actual competition as Mr. Van Wagner states that there are several men who have not as yet been physically examined. Thursday at the lunch hour is the last opportunity for such men to obtain the necessary permission.

The system of scoring points in the interfaculty championship will be: first five points, second three points, third two, while the fourth man in will add one point to his side's total.

A remarkable feature of practices in recent days has been the lack of less experienced runners, who, after competing in the Freshman-Sophomore track meet last Friday seem to have given up track work for the year.

These should all keep on attending the practices as they need work now to be of intercollegiate calibre, when they will be needed on the track teams of the future.

The Harriers have been training faithfully lately, but they too have not had the number of new men they should be running. The Harriers club will be holding the interfaculty meet in the near future, and has, in addition, the intercollegiate and Dunlop Road races on its programme. Every man who is at all interested in running is therefore urged by the club officials to join in the runs every Wednesday, Friday and Monday.

Indian relics were brought to light this has led many to believe that the tower marks the site of one of the corners of the ancient Indian village, but all authorities do not agree with this, claiming that the finds of the railroad people may have been merely debris and rubbish dumped outside the town boundaries. At any rate the McGill Campus was by no means deserted in 1535, but which, in the next few years, was so destroyed that Champlain sixty-five years later could find no trace.

In one of the show cases in the McCord Museum are placed many relics of the first known Montrealers from the collection of Sir Wm. Dawson. These came to light last spring, when the cases of the Natural History Society were being examined. Previous to this, it had been supposed that the Dawson antiquities in the Redpath Library comprised the whole collection of McGill's famous chief but an assortment of curiosities found in 1860 in the neighbourhood was included in the boxes that had been stored away for many years, and the are now on view.

Pieces of pottery, in varied forms and colours bone tools for decorating vessels, pipes and casts of pipes, cooking stones, which were heated in the fire and then dropped into the cooking pots to make the water boil, vertebrae of various animals and bear and beaver teeth.

Dum: Congratulations, I hear that you've invented an auto that will run without any engine.
Dummer: Yeh, I'm almost ready to patent it.
Dum: How are you going to make it run?
Dummer: That's what I'm stuck on.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1925.

SIR ARTHUR'S ADDRESS

Sir Arthur Currie yesterday afternoon took occasion, during his annual Founder's Day Address and Opening Address for the session, to offer advice to the men who are just entering upon their university careers at McGill. Gratifying it was to note that there was a fine attendance of first year men who heard the eloquent words of McGill's Principal, and gratifying it was that Sir Arthur took so significant an occasion in which to point out the ideals which should ever remain before men at college—ideals which if firmly planted at the very outset and allowed to take deep root make for that essential service on the part of McGill to Canada—in Sir Arthur's words "to make young men and young women better citizens—better members of society."

But the really dominant note of the many which Sir Arthur struck, came when he enunciated the fact that students are seldom taught to find out things for themselves. This individual research for which many of our prominent professors are clamoring, lies yet in the distance. The "spoon-feeding" of students continues; they are given their knowledge in fixed doses; they absorb all, and when examinations come they return these hoses as they were given them. This extends beyond the university. It permeates our society to-day and is to be greatly lamented. "Better," says Dean Ira Mackay of the Faculty of Arts, "a single book of Aeneid or of the Odyssey translated imitatively than a dozen books translated in the imperfect way in which this class of work is too often done in the schools at present."

And this Sir Arthur yesterday brought home forcefully to the men of the first years. Individual search for the truth, the finding out of things for themselves—this is probably the greatest thing freshmen can learn at the very outset of their college careers. The professors can guide—they can open up the paths for the students, but it rests with the latter to keep an open mind and to seek for the fundamental truths which are ever to be found if the search is carried far enough.

Says Sir Arthur, "The habit of getting at things for ourselves is a habit we can acquire here in college at the price of constant hard work." Better advice than this for first year men there is none. And the several hundred men and women who to-day stand at the threshold of a new life, in which the fields of knowledge in all their aspects lie before them, could do no better than to hearken to the words of McGill's Principal and to firmly resolve to keep them ever in mind.

NICAEA—ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

It was just sixteen hundred years ago that the Emperor Constantine, clad in the dazzling magnificence of the Orient, entered the great hall of his palace in Nicaea, and formally opened a distinguished council of bishops: the Council of Nicaea.

This has been one of the greatest landmarks of history. Apart from its religious and theological significance, it has another lesson in the way this great Emperor conceived of and established the council as a key-stone to his empire.

By the year 323 he had conquered his last rival for the empire which established him as confessed head of the civilized world. Only the civilized world was in confusion. But Constantine was a man of vision. He saw in the Christian Faith the one force in the world making for unity. So he called this momentous Council of Nicaea. When he sought to bring the three hundred and eighteen bishops, there assembled from all parts, in agreement, he found confusion in the Church also. There were jealousy, petty rivalry, divers opinions of faith and many unnecessary obstacles to be overcome. Fundamentally the bishops agreed, and it needed only the quick thought of Constantine to rise and say, when a rupture seemed impending: "It is the command of Christ that he who desireth to be forgiven must forgive his brother."

This came at the psychological moment. It was a master stroke that brought the pious clergy together and finally achieved his great aim for unity.

In this we may read to-day as true a lesson as any the event may teach. No empire, religion nor institution ever stood with unity. And if we extend this idea a little farther we may realize it is the only thing that will bring continuous glory to our Alma Mater, success to its students, or victory to the football team. Unity means the undivided effort of every student.

The "Chinese Question" will be the course of study this session for the Theological Undergraduate Society. At the suggestion of the executive committee, which met yesterday in an organization meeting, is adopted. The first business meeting of the society will be held in the Union, but the date as yet has not been decided. It is probable that Dr. Roberts will be the speaker upon this occasion. Other plans for the coming season were also discussed.

"Why do they call this dessert, father?" asked Willie.

"Because this is when everybody leaves."

Corporal: Hey you! Why haven't you shaved?

Private: There were six others using the mirror and I think I shaved somebody else!

A Simple Shampoo—

A simple and inexpensive shampoo, and one which leaves the hair soft, glossy and with a delicate aroma, is to take a basin of warm water and make a free lather using Baby's Own Soap. Rub well into the scalp, rinse with warm and then cool water. Dry in sun and wind if possible.

This simple shampoo is excellent for hair and scalp and costs very little as Baby's Own Soap is sold at 10c a cake by most dealers.

CORRECTION

In the McGill Daily of Friday, Oct. 2, in the report of the official opening of the Theological colleges of the United Church of Canada, Dr. Welsh was incorrectly reported as saying that the non-concurring Presbyterians had suggested a basis for sharing the College, and then refused it. This was not so. The suggestion was brought forward by a sub-committee and was mutual.

Dr. Welsh's statement is as follows: "The outstanding point of difference was the proportionate distribution of surplus revenues, after provision for maintenance had been made, on the ratio of 60 per cent for our board and 40 per cent for the non-concurring board. This proposal was acceptable to our board. On Saturday last our sub-committee was officially informed on behalf of the other sub-committee that further negotiations were unnecessary and they did not see their way to accept the terms proposed, and did not think that joint occupation of the college would be feasible or satisfactory. This failure of mutual approaches our board feels is a matter for regret."

The Daily hopes that this statement will clarify any misunderstanding which may have arisen.

A Scotsman, after gazing for some time at the Great Pyramid, muttered: "Man, what a lot of mason-work not to be bringing in any cent!"

RUGBY.

RUGBY TEAM HAD A MUDDY TIME OF IT YESTERDAY

Despite the fact that it was raining heavily most of yesterday afternoon, Coach Shaughnessy had the boys out and was putting them through their paces as usual. The coach evidently isn't going to let a rain storm come between him and the championship. The bad weather didn't keep anybody away either for there were over fifty men in uniform. This speaks well for the spirit of the men for as everybody knows it is a lot nicer to go to a show or a tea dance or both on a wet afternoon than stick your nose in a muddy ground. The rain kept the fans away so that the shows were in money on the rainstorm.

In spite of the slippery condition of the field, the coach kept the men going in a heavy scrimmage practice. It was the first scrimmage this week and everyone showed some good stuff during the afternoon. Captain Noolie Philpott and Boyd Miller were out again to-day. It was their first appearance at a scrimmage since nearly a week ago. They were out on Monday also, but on that day the coach gave the men a bit of a rest and there were only signals and running. Ney Gordon was the only regular to not appear. Ney is suffering from a cold but is expected out in a day or two. Ralph St. Germain did not take part in the practice either for the finger that forced him to retire in Saturday's game is bothering him.

NOOLIE PHILPOTT

SOCCER TEAM TO GO ON AMERICAN TOUR

In an interview with the Daily's representative, the manager of the Soccer Team intimated that an American tour had been arranged, in which games with Springfield, Yale and West Point will be played. This tour, of course, is in addition to the regular games with Varsity, R.M.C., and Western University, and for this reason should prove a great incentive to men to play soccer.

Up to the present time, much interest has been shown, but many men are still needed. McGill had an excellent team last year, winning the Intercollegiate Championship from R.M.C., and defeating many of the leading teams in Montreal.

The Manager hopes that as many men as possible will turn out at the practice, which are held on the Campus, at four P. M.

SYNTHETIC MARBLE.

A new process of manufacturing synthetic marble has been devised in which the marble is made by a wet method in place of the fire method. A mixture is made of calcium chloride and an aqueous solution of sodium carbonate or a mixture of precipitated carbonate of lime and sodium chloride solution is heated in autoclave at a temperature of 300 degrees C. and 21 atmospheres pressure for a period of eight hours. A compact mass is obtained in this manner. The product resembles marble, and has the same high lustre. When sodium sulphate is employed in admixture with chloride of calcium a product is obtained which resembles alabaster.

POINTS OUT PATH.

Sir Arthur Currie, who yesterday afternoon in an eloquent address at the fall Convocation, urged newcomers to McGill to realize the ideals of the University and the traditions of McGill.

down; in war her sons have crowded the way to death. Seldom has a man wearing her colors and bearing her name brought shame upon her. You would like, perhaps, to enter in the seclusion of study. But the world will call you in due time."

Sir Arthur in concluding pointed to the McGill men who had answered to the call of war and who had achieved signal honor for the University. They cannot die, he said. They are among the Founders of McGill's great traditions.

BATTLE LIES BEFORE
"And because your fathers and brothers fought for freedom are you to secede because you were born too late? No. For every great crisis in Canada is an Ypres, a Vimy, a Passchendaele — and while McGill remains true to her Founder's dreams there will always be young men to die for a principle, even if they cannot always conquer. A great battle for your country lies before you — the battle against ignorance and prejudice and wrong. You are privileged to prepare yourself here for its hardships and its joy of struggle. The voices of our Founders and of the men who bled summon you to the colors for truth. For as a result of ignorance and injustice men are bleeding still. Be true in all your endeavours to the ideals of our glorious past and you, too, will add to the lustre of McGill and to her splendid service for Canada and the world."

Presented by Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, Right Honourable Sir Bertrand Dawson, Baron Dawson of Penn, G.C.V.O., K.C., M.C., C.B., M.D., B.Sc., F.R.C.P., Physician-in-ordinary to King George and the Princess of Wales and a member of the Senate of the University of London, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him with the usual colorful ceremony. In a few remarks addressed to the large gathering he paid a glowing tribute to McGill and its reputation. McGill was the first university to send a full equipped hospital to the seat of the war, he said. That hospital established a splendid reputation. The speaker too, paid a tribute to McGill's Principal who was leading the university, he declared along the road of further achievement.

"We must," he said, "be students always, and when we are not it is time to ring down the curtain." The student above all must work hard and play well.

Thirty-eight degrees were conferred.

DR. OLIVER ADDRESSES THEOLOGY STUDENTS

Science Frosh Fail Miserably As New Carusos

Science freshmen have excelled in track events and have won the grand postball, but the terrible news must be broken—they are a rotten bunch of singers. A crowd of enterprising senior students undertook to give the frosh a series of singing lessons which started on the steps of the engineering building this morning. The frosh proved willing enough, but the unmerciful din was too much for the hard hearts of the teachers who nearly sobbed at the results of their lessons.

"Put on your Red and White Sweater" was the chief cause of agony. It is reported that the Royal Victoria Hospital was about to send an ambulance, under the impression that a limousine had run over and injured an Irish washer woman on University street, but through the yearlings sang at different pitches and rates of speed, they worked up to a grand climax, and in a voice which shocked the occupants of nearby theological colleges, came out with a tremendous "he-l-l-l-l!"

After the massed singing practice was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon, two backward pupils were exhorted to give a duet entitled "Gone are the days." Upon unwillingness to comply they had to fix their vests on hind part before and roll up their trouser legs. They then decided to comply, and the dismal strains compelled their seniors to retire quickly to avoid a bilious attack.

Country Above Party

"We are at a dangerous turning point in our history, and it is the duty of the Province of Quebec to lift up its voice in favor of the country and not of a party. Let us raise ourselves sincerely to the heights of national interest. Let us urgently demand the application of the policies of Cartier, inspired policies of Canadian aims which alone can aid and save us."
—Hon. Es. L. Patenaude.

In the last four years Canada has suffered at the hands of a Government which has exploited the country in the sole interests of a political party, and whose administration has been detrimental to all Canadian citizens and especially to our workers.

There has been Dominion-wide discouragement and stagnation in industry.

We have seen the invasion of our markets by the merchandise and products of foreign countries, disastrous alike to our business men and farmers, an invasion that has taken bread from the mouths of thousands of our men, women and children.

We have seen the exodus of our national wealth—of raw materials—our wood, our pulpwood, our asbestos and our nickel. These have flowed out of the country to feed foreign industries and enrich foreign people at our expense.

The appalling and unceasing exodus of our people — driven from our cities by lack of work, driven from the rural districts by the competition of the foreign farmer.

The very flower of our people have been forced to cross the border in the wake of our raw materials in order to find in another country work and a livelihood denied them in Canada. In fact, no less than 436,000 Canadians have left Canada in less than four years.

In one year, under the King administration, Canada has lost twice as many citizens as she lost in the four years of the Great War.

In the face of this crisis in the national and economic life of Canada, the people of Quebec have appealed to a man who has given in the past undeniable proof of his patriotism and sincerity—Es. L. Patenaude.

In response, Mr. Patenaude is calling upon his fellow-citizens of the Province of Quebec to rise, as in former days, in the interests of Canada.

He wishes:—

To stimulate the energies of the country from ocean to ocean.

To bring our thousands of young men and women back from the United States.

To lighten our appalling taxation which is crippling industry.

To develop Canadian resources in Canada for the benefit of Canadians.

To give reasonable protection to Canadian producers — those of the land as well as those of the factory.

This is the platform of Mr. Patenaude and of his candidates.

The present is a time of great gravity in the life of this country. It is Quebec's mission in this election to keep CANADA FOR CANADIANS.
